CLAIMS

1. A method of licensing and managing media resources in a converged services platform, said method comprising the steps of:

creating a central pool of resource points representing a licensed level of media resource capability; storing in said central pool all default and any additional licensed resource points represented by a converged services platform; and dynamically allocating portions of said central pool to one or more media resource cards.